

Memphis College of Art

1936 - 2020

For eighty-four years, Memphis College of Art was the heart and soul of the Mid-South's visual arts community. Its origins trace back to the opening of a community arts school, the Memphis Academy of Arts, within the James Lee House in Victorian Village, and continued to its home in the iconic Rust Hall within Overton Park. As one of only three independent regionally and nationally accredited art colleges in the South, MCA provided a rigorous curriculum in an intimate, diverse setting to empower generations of leading artists, designers, and educators. The profound influence of MCA artists is everywhere you look in Memphis and beyond, and the legacy of this great institution continues through these artists as they increase the richness of the communities where they work and live.

College Timeline

Memphis artist Florence M. McIntyre founds the Memphis Art Association.

1922

The Memphis Art Association begins a program of free art classes at the Nineteenth Century Club with Ms. McIntyre directing.

1925

The Memphis Art Association moves to one of Rosa Lee's homes at 690 Adams Avenue after outgrowing the Nineteenth Century Club.

1929-30

Rosa Lee deeds her homes to the City of Memphis for the purposes of art education. Sponsored by the Memphis Art Association, the James Lee Memorial Academy of Art opens at 690 Adams Avenue and soon expands next door. In an early partnership, the trustees support the Academy and its programs while the City of Memphis owns and maintains the facilities.

1936

In a dramatic split, faculty, students, and trustees walk out on Ms. McIntyre over her refusal to accept modernism. Together they open the Mid-South School of Fine Arts, which was incorporated as a Tennessee non-profit educational corporation by charter in April 1936.

In July, the name is changed to the Memphis Academy of Arts (MAA), commonly referred to as the Academy. The new Academy is established in a cotton building on Front Street lent to the school by a cotton merchant. In the fall of 1936, the school moves into an empty high school Board of Education building at 317 Poplar Avenue. Allan Taft Squire is named the first Director.

1937

Robert J. McKnight is named the second Director following Squire's retirement. Dorothy Sturm and Burton Callicott join the faculty and become pillars of the Academy. Mildred Hudson establishes the Saturday School for Youth, which swiftly gains popularity.

1940

Mrs. and Mr. C.M. Gooch create a foundation and scholarships for the Academy. They present the school with a new Chevrolet station wagon to go out to the high schools to enlist students to come to the Academy.

1942

The Lee family withdraws from the James Lee Academy, evicting Ms. McIntyre whose enrollment had dwindled. The students and faculty of the Memphis Academy of Arts move back to the two Lee family houses on Adams Street, made available by the City of Memphis. Gilbert Banever is named the third Director.

1943

Mildred Nyrop Hudson is named the fourth Director. Hudson adds the staff positions of Bursar and Registrar and begins a supply store and a library with a slide collection.

1946

The Academy is approved for students to enroll under the G.I. Bill of Rights.

1947

The Tennessee Board of Education awards accreditation to the Memphis Academy of Arts. The Foundations program is established and the first Alumni Traveling Fellowship is awarded.

1949

The Memphis Academy of Arts announces its full Bachelor of Fine Arts program. Edwin "Ted" Rust becomes the fifth Director.

1950

The first Bachelor of Fine Arts degrees are granted. The Memphis Academy of Arts is named a member of the National Association of Schools of Art and Design (NASAD). The school holds its first Christmas Bazaar, an "Exhibition/Sale of Student-Faculty Work," now known as the Holiday Bazaar.

1950s

Edward "Ted" Faiers, Henry Easterwood, and William Womack join the faculty.

1957

A groundbreaking ceremony for the Academy's new home in Overton Park is held in November.

1959

The Academy moves into its current home, an award-winning building created by Roy Harrover (Harrover & Mann), the design of which was selected by world-famous architects Paul Rudolph and Philip Johnson in an international competition, located within the 342-acre Overton Park. A dedication of the new building in Overton Park, known as Rust Hall, is held on April 26, 1959.

1960s

John McIntire and Peter Sohngen join the faculty.

1961

The trustees approve the enrollment of African-American high school art teacher Mrs. Melba Briscoe and the Academy becomes the first institution in the county to integrate without a court order. By the summer, there are ten African-American teachers enrolled.

1962

Veda Reed joins the faculty.

1963

Accreditation is granted by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS).

1965

Dolph Smith joins the faculty. City Commissioners approve funding for an expansion of Rust Hall.

1966 - 1967

A matching south wing, including the entry gallery, a library, and an auditorium with studio space above, are added to the original building in Overton Park with a dedication of the new space in April 1967.

1968

Murray Riss joins the faculty and starts the photography department.

1975

The sculpture and shop annex is added on to Rust Hall.

1976

Associate Director Dr. Jameson M. Jones is named the Academy's first president. The Ford Foundation supports sabbaticals and student study trips.

1980

William C. Collins is named the second President.

1981 - 1982

Phillis S. Morris is named Acting President until John S. Slorp is named President in 1982. Slorp begins the introduction of computer technology to the curriculum.

1985

The Board votes to change the institution's name to Memphis College of Art (MCA), and the name is officially changed in February 1985. Professor Robert Riseling begins the Horn Island excursion program with nine students attending the first year.

1987

Graduate studies begin as the Master of Fine Arts degree is offered and accredited nationally. Two buildings on the north side of Rust Hall are added in 1986-1987.

1990-1991

Phillip S. Morris is named Acting President until Jeffrey D. Nesin is named President in 1991.

1991

MCA becomes a founding member of the Association of Independent Colleges of Art and Design.

1992

MCA begins purchasing additional buildings for student housing and campus expansion across from Overton Park along Poplar Avenue and in the Tucker-Jefferson neighborhood.

1995

The dedication of the Burton Callicott Auditorium is held.

1997-1998

MCA's new graduate center at Poplar and Tucker is purchased. The restoration of that building receives the Memphis Landmarks Commission Award.

2003

MCA breaks ground on a new student residence, Metz Hall, made possible by a historic $1,000,000 gift to the college by the family of the late Charles B. Metz.

2004

Metz Hall opens.

2006

NASAD grants plan approval for Master of Art Education and Master of Art in Teaching programs.

2010

MCA purchases the former Lewis Supply Company, an early 20th century industrial building at Main and Butler across from the National Civil Rights Museum, to create the Nesin Graduate School. Renovations are completed and classes are first held there in fall 2010. Fogelman Hall, a matching student residence hall to Metz, is dedicated and opened for student use. The City of Memphis deeds ownership of Rust Hall in Overton Park to the college. The State Board of Education approves the Master of Art Education and Master of Art in Teaching programs.

2011

Dr. Ron Jones is named President.

2017

Laura Hine is named President. MCA launches its Fashion Design Certificate Program, the only one in the Mid-South region, in partnership with Memphis Fashion Design Network.

2020

MCA hosts its final Commencement Ceremony on May 9, 2020.

Annual Costume Ball

What first began as the Memphis Art Association Artist Ball on March 23, 1925 as a fundraiser for the art school swiftly became a beloved annual tradition. Each year, MCA students, faculty, and staff would decorate and prepare for the Annual Costume Ball. Attendees wore costumes depicting figures and motifs from paintings, drawings, and sculptures. The Balls often had themes, such as “Rousseau’s Garden of Eden,” “A Night in Montmartre,” and “Neptune’s Kingdom.” A King and Queen were crowned as artists danced the night away.

Community Education

The history of Memphis College of Art begins with Community Education. From the first free art classes offered by the Memphis Art Association in 1922 to the introduction of the Saturday School for Youth by Mildred Hudson in 1937, this institution has welcomed adults and children of all ages and abilities to express themselves creatively. Featuring inspiring media, qualified teaching artists, and professional-level facilities and equipment, Community Education has allowed neighbors in Memphis and beyond to experience art hands-on. As the institution grew, so did the Community Education Program, serving hundreds of individuals yearly through adult classes, youth classes, Saturday School, Summer Art Camp, the Fashion Design Certificate Program, Free Family Art Workshops, and community outreach events.

Holiday Bazaar

One of the longest traditions of the college – the Annual Holiday Bazaar & Fundraiser – began in 1950 under the fifth Director of the Memphis Academy of Arts, Edwin “Ted” Rust. The Bazaar would quickly become a highly-anticipated annual tradition. Student and faculty artworks, including drawings, paintings, woodcuts, sculpture, jewelry, and more, were offered to buyers that first year. The 1957 Bazaar helped support the move to the new building in Overton Park, with posters advertising that all proceeds would be donated by students and faculty to the new building fund, while the 1958 Bazaar was the last held in the Adams Avenue building before the move to Rust Hall.

Local and regional artists, students, alumni, staff, and faculty continued to fill the galleries with artworks through the Bazaar’s 69th and final year in 2019.

The legacy of this popular event lives on in the artworks and gifts adorning spaces in Memphis and beyond.

Horn Island

I pledge allegiance to the flag of Horn Island, Mississippi, and to the artists for which it stands. One island, under the sun, in the water, with mosquitoes, sand, and barbecued Spam for all.

- Mike Gray

For 35 years, MCA students followed in the footsteps of American artist Walter Inglis Anderson (1903-1965) as they made a ten-day excursion to Horn Island, an uninhabited barrier island off the coast of Mississippi. The Horn Island program began in 1985 under the direction of Professor Emeritus Robert Riseling and continued under the direction of Associate Professor Don DuMont starting in 2006. Horn Island's unspoiled vistas, rich marine life, and hundreds of species of flora and fauna provided inspiration for many of Anderson's paintings, sculptures, and writings, and have continued to inspire the work of students, alumni, faculty, and staff of MCA for decades.

Spotlight Artists

Memphis College of Art alumni and faculty have shaped their industries and communities throughout the institution's history.

The following artists are but a few of the hundreds of MCA artists that have left, and continue to leave, their mark.

Public Art

The influence of MCA artists can be seen throughout the city of Memphis, TN. Many examples of important public works exist in the individual artist pages of this catalog, and a sampling of public art projects are present on the following pages. These are but a few examples of the multitude of works around the city that MCA artists have led or contributed to over the decades.

The legacy of our artists' public works continue to shape the communities in which they reside within this great city that the institution called home for 84 years.
